nayt

raising the game

formerly known as Workshop Weekend

Raising the Game is your opportunity to meet fellow professionals in a highly supportive environment, gain a whole range of new skills and share some of yours, learn new approaches and reinvigorate your thinking and practice.

This event is for people aged 18 and over who use theatre and/or theatre techniques with young people.

Workshops and skills sharing sessions are delivered across a diversity of areas and a range of levels, so no matter who you are, your experience or specialism, there will be many things you can be part of and much to take away with you.

Back by popular demand to run workshops this year is Jeremy Stockwell. Jeremy is a very experienced teacher, director, performer and writer. He teaches at RADA and has clients who are popstars, business people, politicians and celebrities.

What people have said

"Thought it was all amazing."

"The workshops were fantastic for professional development and I'll definitely be back!"

"A great opportunity to meet other practitioners, share ideas and make links"

"Very friendly supportive atmosphere and great variety of workshops."

"It's great to meet other youth theatre workers from around the country."

"An invaluable event... Make time to do this at least once."

"Good to meet people who do a similar job to me and talk through frustrations - always cathartic!"

How much will it cost?

The fee is £100 per person and includes:

- Up to five workshops
- Delegate pack
- Social event with a meal on Friday night
- Both formal and informal networking opportunities
- Activities on Thursday evening
- Skill sharing opportunities
- Information session on NAYT's new Excellence and Inclusion Scheme.

It does not include travel or accommodation. You will be responsible for booking your own accommodation. Limited places are available - please book early to avoid disappointment!
